Getting Started

The first step to learning how to play the drums is to get a drum set. You can find drum sets at most music stores. Once you have a drum set, you can start practicing the basic beats.

Basic Beats

The most basic drum beat is the quarter note beat. This beat is played by hitting the snare drum on the downbeat and the bass drum on the upbeat.

Once you have mastered the quarter note beat, you can start learning other basic beats, such as the half note beat, the eighth note beat, and the sixteenth note beat.

Reading Drum Music

Drum music is written using a special notation called drum tablature. Drum tablature is similar to guitar tablature, but it uses different symbols to represent the different drum sounds.
